Quick Facts about Young Voters in Colorado: The Presidential Election Year 2008

By Karlo Barrios Marcelo and Emily Hoban Kirby
October 2008

This year’s general election follows a primary season in which more than 6.5 million young people under the age of 30 participated.

In 2004, turnout among 18-to-29 year-olds in Colorado ranked 25th among all states and the District of Columbia in 2004, and was up 13 percentage points over 2000. The national youth voter turnout for the primaries increased by eight points, from nine percent in 2004 to 17 percent in 2008. However, whether the voter mobilization momentum of 2008 continues into the general election remains unpredictable.

This fact sheet reports the characteristics of young voters for the state of Colorado, including estimates of the number of young voters and voter turnout rates in 2004 and 2000 for various subgroups of young people.

Estimates of Eligible Young Voters, 2008

In 2008, a Presidential election year, there are an estimated 699 thousand young people in Colorado who are eligible to vote in U.S. elections. Table 1 shows voting statistics for the years 2004 and 2000. Colorado’s youth voter turnout rate was in the middle of all states in 2004, but it had the 42nd highest turnout rate among youth in 2000 among all 50 states and the District of Columbia.

Voter Turnout Rates in 2004 and 2000 Among Eligible Young Citizens

Table 2 displays voter turnout rates for various groups of young people in 2004 and 2000 in Colorado. 2004 was a year of high voter turnout for all youth groups in Colorado relative to 2000. Relative to the nation as a whole in 2004, youth in Colorado were slightly more electorally engaged.
